Sustains Broken Jawbone, Leg and Arm While Playing.

Cary Morgan Peaseley, eleven-yearold son of Mr. and Mrs. G. D. Peaseley, of 712 Lamb Avenue, Barton Heights, had his right leg, arm and jaw bone broken yesterday afternoon, when he was caught beneath an iron cylinder, weighing three tons, in a machine shop at the plant of the American Lo-comotive Company. He was rushed to Grace Hospital by Dr. O. C. Page, City Hospital ambulance surgeon. It was said last night that while badly hurt. he would recover.

With several companions, including Calvin and Angus Sinclair and George and Neal Crutchfield, young Peaseley visited the locomotive works on a zightseeing expedition. They were granted admittance by a watchman. It was while playing in the machine shop that the accident occurred. In some peculiar manner the huge cylinder, such as is used on big locomotives, toppled over, catching him beneath it. topped over, catching him beneath it. His companions naryowly escaped being caught. Peaserey's playmates ran for aid, and it required the combined efforts of eight men to free the boy. An emergency call was sent for the automobile ambarance. The fractured limbs and jawbone were set by Dr. H. Stuart MacLean and Dr. W. P. Mathews. Mr. Peaseley, who had been summoned, remained with his son until he had been re-moved from the operating room. Mrs. Peaseley said he was resting comfor ably at midnight.
